

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A hand tool includes a retractable shank, a handle, an elastic member, and at least one fixing pin. Thus, the rod assembly of the retractable shank can be retracted into and expanded outward from the receiving chamber of the handle so as to adjust the distance between the retractable shank and the handle, so that the working length of the hand tool can be adjusted easily, rapidly and arbitrarily.